

The proposed changes in media ownership rules could shift the structure of our media marketplace and severely limit the diversity of media outlets. Such diversity is critical to the survival of our democracy. We need a congressiional debate about the consequences of such an important issue. Public involvement in decision making is what democracy is all about.